

Mission

The Waco Regional Baptist Association is a voluntary network of Baptist churches in Central Texas who have chosen to cooperate in order to extend and embody the good news of Jesus Christ.

About WRBA

Whether it is in the area covered by one of our ministry teams or just an informal gathering for fellowship or information, our staff, website, emails, and newsletters continuously connect churches and church leaders so we can cooperatively extend and embody the Good News of Jesus. This is all funded by voluntary contributions from your church.

This means that each year, your church determines the future of the WRBA and its ministries. This also means that through the WRBA your church is extending its ministry in the name of Jesus all over McLennan County and beyond—even to many other nations as we network our churches with mission projects and trips from Mississippi to Kenya. Today, the WRBA has 90+ member congregations that worship in five different languages.

“I am glad Speegleville Baptist Church is part of the Waco Regional Baptist Association. The WRBA provides a great place for churches to fellowship together, minister together, learn together, and be the “body of Christ” together in Waco and beyond. If your church is not a part of the WRBA, then I encourage you and your church to pray about being a member of this association as we reach our world for Christ.”
